

Hey FIERCE Mothers!

Welcome to the first of our weekly newsletter, FIERCE Wednesdays.

Every Wednesday morning, you'll get one actionable tip on following your purpose without guilt or burnout.

This week, we want to let you know that The Igbo Initiative Podcast is back as the FIERCE Mothers podcast.

We took a break but are back with fresh energy and vigor.

FIERCE Mothers is a space for mothers of color to share their stories and connect.

As a woman of Igbo heritage, I have interacted with many inspirational African women and women of color and wanted a forum to celebrate our achievements. The FIERCE Mothers Podcast showcases these stories through compelling interviews with inspiring guests. I will also record solo episodes where I discuss timely topics such as micro-aggressions, the myth of the angry black woman, burnout, leadership, and other pertinent issues.

The podcast will be available on your favorite podcast platform. You can also find out more about it on the show's website <https://fiercemothers.com/podcast>.

New episodes will be available on Feb 1, and we can't wait for you to see what we have been working on behind the scenes.

I can't wait to hear what you think!

One small favor — Please reply to this email with “Hey Ugochi” to ensure you get the email newsletters. It takes five seconds.
